

Motherhood Moments #5

Sometimes motherhood looks like this...

Sitting on the floor watching the boy explore and play peek-a-boo. I love simple days like this where the house is a mess and all I do is enjoy what God has placed before me. With a never-ending "to do" list, it is a constant (internal) struggle for me to sit instead of keeping myself in constant motion all the time.

The other day when Kevin and I were doing our devotionals, he found this verse and it immediately struck a chord with me:

"A cheerful heart is good medicine, but a crushed spirit dries up the bones." Proverbs 17:22

Sometimes, sitting on the floor enjoying those baby blues staring back up at me is the perfect way to have a more cheerful heart!