

Happy Birthday

Yesterday was Adah's 3rd birthday. She has been talking about "Happy Birthday" for a weeks now. I even had a paper countdown to help her realize how much time is required. I was super excited myself because this was to be the first birthday she has shown interest. I decided to go "all out" and give her what she asked for. Here are the photos with captions included.

Each of her toys got her a present. She made certain to thank each and give kisses.

Her toy's left a trail showing her where to go. She was thrilled to see her toys out. She squealed "LOOK!"

She picked up the box and shook it asking, "What's that?" I love her stunning blue eyes.

Adah insisted on playing with each item after opening it. She is enjoying her new putty and cutters.

She was tickled with the party blowers.

She loved her new Peppa Pig noisy book!

Her favorite part - singing "Happy Birthday" and blowing out candles. She insisted we do this three times.

So much fun!

Finally enjoying the sponge cake.

Happy 3rd Birthday to my sweet baby girl! You are such a joy and so filled with life. We can't imagine our lives without you.
